The dusky light the day is losing

Orchids, poppies, black-eyed susan

The earth and sky that melts with flesh and bone

Won't you meet me

out in the moonlight alone

The air is thick and heavy

All along the levee

Where the geese into the countryside have flown

Won't you meet me

The clouds are turning crimson

The leaves fall from the limbs and

The branches cast their shadows over stone

Won't you meet me

out in the moonlight alone

The boulevards of cypress trees

The masquerade of birds and bees

The petals pink and white, the wind has blown

Won't you meet me
out in the moonlight alone

Bridge:

The trailing moss in mystic glow
The purple blossom soft as snow
My tears keep flowing to the sea.
Doctor, lawyer, Indian chief
It takes a thief to catch a thief
For whom does the bell toll for, love?
It tolls for you and me.

Old pulses running through my palm
The sharp hills are rising from Yellow fields with twisted oaks that groan
Won't you meet me
out in the moonlight alone
