

The Queen Of Hearts

To the Queen of Hearts goes the Ace of Sorrow,

He is here today, he is gone tomorrow,

Young men are plenty but sweethearts few,

If my love leaves me, what shall I do ?

I have a store on yonder mountain,
Where gold and silver are had for countin',
I cannot count for thought of thee,
My eyes so full I cannot see.

I love my father, I love my mother,
I love my sister, I love my brother,
I love my friends and relations too,
But I'd leave them all to go with you.

My father left me both house and lands,
And servants many at my command,
At my command they ne'er shall be,
I'll leave them all to go with thee.
